This game exceeded my expectations in every way.

I was a little hesitant to buy it at first after seeing several poor reviews, but looking into it further it seemed everything people were complaining about was a simple fix. For example a lot of people complained about it not being very accurate. Then I read a review where they explained youre supposed to stand 610 ft away and the sensors should be fairly close to eye level. This turned out to be true and if you follow the provided directions its very accurate and easy to use. The graphics are great for what it is. Obviously if youre comparing it to xbox one or ps4 graphics it just doesnt measure up. That was never the intent of the sure shot hd system. It was mainly meant to bring old classic hunting arcade games like big buck hunter and big buck safari to your home. These games never had the best graphics, but for what it is, the graphics are very good. Everyone of all ages in my family absolutely love this game. Including the little grandkids, their parents, and even the grandparents. I would highly recommend this product to anyone considering buying it. Reviewed in the United States on June 27, 2018 I got this for my boyfriend for an anniversary present he is obsessed with playing the arcade version at bars. Some of the reviews made me a bit nervous but the good ones were good enough to take chance. He just opened the gift an hour ago.all I've heard from him since is "this is so freaking cool!" over and over again. To be fair, it is a relatively cheap system based on an old arcade game. Don't expect PlayStation or whatever the kids are playing these days topquality. But to put in his terms "oh my god it's like I'm at the bar except I don't have to put another dollar in the machine" Success. EDIT a mere 3 weeks later and we're having problems we are stuck on a screen that says "looking for gun" everything is plugged in, lights are on for both the receiver and the gun, but it's not finding it. Super bummed.

Hoping we can find a way to fix this because the game has been incredibly fun until now. Please try again later. Some of the reviews made me a bit nervous but the good ones were good enough to take chance. Super bummed. Hoping we can find a way to fix this because the game has been incredibly fun until now. Please try again later. Please try again later. Steven Broderick 5.0 out of 5 stars This game exceeded my expectations in every way. I would highly recommend this product to anyone considering buying it. Please try again later. Please try again later. R. FELIX 1.0 out of 5 stars I was told by the seller I needed a 2.0 amp power adapter, so I purchased one, and that didnt change the problem, so I purchased a different one, and that didnt work, then I purchased one that was 2.1 amps and that didnt resolve it, then I finally purchased one that was 3.0 amps and guess what.it still didnt resolve it. Now, several months have passed and I still havent used this game a single day and I still dont have a resolution from the seller. I asked for a refund and still no response. What a tease with this game, and I really want to try it! Please try again later. Please try again later. Roxanne grant 4.0 out of 5 stars Didn't seem accurate. Even coming on screen Me and hubby both tried it could not do well. We hunt a lot. The color and quality was very good great game over all. Gun was ok and seem to be sturdy Think they should make adult size. Little better quality in the gun, After pumping it so much worried it's not gonna last, Please try again later. Please try again later. Mitchell 4.0 out of 5 stars I love this game in the arcade and having a home version is a dream come true. The game functions well, the aiming is accurate enough that you dont notice any issues, and the game runs great.

However, the calibration can be a bit wonky when trying to set it up, and occasionally when returning to the system hub the controller disconnects and you need to wait the 5 minutes for the system to enter sleep mode before you can get it to reconnect. I found the best way to play is with any main, overhead light turned off and that provided the best response from the controller. The calibration and playing in the dark is the reason it doesnt get 5 stars, but it will certainly not stop me from loving the heck out of it. Please try again later. Big lag and no accuracy. Please try again later. Please try again later. Brock 1.0 out of 5 stars Support team SUCKS!! Buyer Beware!! I loved the game when it worked, so i guessing the issue was most likely the gun, being its the only moving component and more likely to have been wacked around by my kids than the receiver console on the TV, i bought a new gun and gave that a shot. That didnt solve the issue, so I forked out even more money and bought the complete system, again. It worked for 3 months and I took perfect care of it, and then all of a sudden one day it couldnt find the gun, and remained suck scanning for gun after all troubleshooting attempts failed to resolve the issue. I emailed support, and they took weeks to get back to me, and offered no help at all. That was at least 1 year ago now. I have never been so disappointed with a product or its support team ever in my lift. I find it interesting they have never heard of this issue before, and apparently they dont have a fix for it either. Fun game while it lasts, but buyer beware, purchase at your own risk and dont get too attached. Please try again later. Please try again later. Joshua 1.0 out of 5 stars It would allow about 10 mins play time and freeze. Changed batteries, purchased proper adapter, the whole 9 yards. Stinks because we were really excited, as this is an arcade favorite. Please try again later. Please try again later. Morky 2.

0 out of 5 stars Please try again later. Please try again later. James 5.0 out of 5 stars The only recommendation that I have is to make sure that you follow the recommended distance away from your tv when you are calibrating the gun. Otherwise, it can be very frustrating to set up. Its an awesome way to have fun in the comfort of your own home and wear what you want to while you do it! Please try again later. Petro thought that hunting games were popular in homes but there was also a lack of those in arcades. He pitched the idea to the design team, and shortly after started developing the prototype with Incredible Technologies doing the manufacture of the arcade machine. Buck has been one of the biggest goto knife makers for hunting and camping for decades. Whether you plan on hunting deer or duck, there's a Buck knife you should take with you. On the one hand, that's a nice, strong legacy. The problem is that any company that's been around for that long has put out a lot of different products by necessity.

Buck knives might be the American hunting knife, but which Buck knife. In the first half of this blog I've tried to categorize all these knives according their style or the collection they belong to. Not all of them fit so cleanly into a category so you might see outliers, but every Buck knife that seemed to me to be made especially for hunting is in the blog. In the second half I take some of the knives out of the tables that I think are the best for small or large game and talk about them in a little more detail. I think most people know what it means when they see BOS 420HC steel, but what about DymaLux wood. I didn't know either. Here's what I've found about that kind of thing Edge2X Blade Technology This is a whole "new" process of creating edges that Buck started in 1999. It involves lasercutting machines and a different way of heat treating, but essentially it's a reduced angle on the edge's bevel from what had been around 45 degrees total to 30 degrees total meaning a 15 degree bevel on each side of the edge. This makes the blade a lot better at slicing, and a little easier to sharpen, although it does require a gentler touch. Crelicam Ebony This is ebony wood bought from the Crelicam wood mill owned by Madinter a wood supplier and Taylor Guitars a guitar manufacturer. The idea of the company is to promote and encourage legal and ethical sourcing of ebony wood, which has been a problem in the past. DymaLux Wood This is basically dyed birch laminate injected with resin. If you were ever familiar with the Dymondwood scales Buck knives used to have, it's similar to that. Back to Top Hunters and Rangers The EDC Hunting Set These are the designs that made everyone fall in love with Buck knives, and probably knives in general. The 110s and 112s have been around for a long time now, and we've never stopped buying the crap out of them because they're great EDCs, but hunting and general camping was their original intention.

Table of Buck 110 and 112 Variations Recently the 110 and 112 models have seen a lot of upgrades recently. Buck updated everything in this series with different steels, handle materials, and carry systems. The clip point blade style and blade sizes remain the same throughout every versions, though. The 101 Hunter is exactly the same as your standard Buck 110 except it's a fixed blade. I don't hear a lot of chatter about this little outlier, and I definitely don't see many people carry it, but it's a nice thought from Buck, whether or not it's actually a good idea. A fulltang 110 seems like a neat thing to own. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon Back to Top Orphan Hunting Knives There are a few good hunting knives by Buck that aren't part of a series and don't quite fit cleanly into any category beyond "hunting", so this is where they go. I'm putting them up here at the beginning so they don't get missed, because some of these really are fantastic knives. Many of these are the kinds of knives you could take into the woods with nothing else. They all have pretty long blade, but many are thin enough to work with smaller game in a pinch, and they can handle some bushcraft and survival jobs a lot better than the skinningoriented knives that dominate this list. Many are customizable, and Buck offers a decent range of handle and blade materials, but for the most part these are all 420HC with phenolic or DymaLux wood handles that could stand to be a little grippier. Overall Size Blade Size Blade Style S30V Version Check Price On Amazon Check Price On Amazon

Blade HQ Back to Top Open Season Knives The Dedicated Hunting Set This is Buck's dedicated hunting series. Whatever you're planning on doing or hunting on your next trip, Buck has tried to make a knife under this name that will be perfect for the job. Right now, there are two versions of these knives made the regular Open Season knives which are mostly BOS 420HC Steel and DymaLux scales, and the Pro versions, which have S35V steel and Micarta scales. NOTE I left out the 550 Selector 2.0 here and put it in the Multitool section. If you plan on packing gear through the woods for an extended period, PackLite blades are made to be as light as possible and still offer the same degree of function you get from other Buck knives. They aren't the most comfortable knives, but that can be helped a little if you have some paracord to spare. There's a similar range of selection here to the Open Season knives, including blades for small and large game, plus a few for dressing game in the field. None of these are Leathermanstyle multitools with ten different kinds of bottle openers tucked inside the handle. They're taskdriven designs boiled down specifically to cater to hunting. It should be noted that the 550 Selector 2.0 is technically part of the Open Season series. Its overall design is the same as the 556 Open Season Folding Skinner, but the Selector's interchangeable blade feature puts it in a different class for me. It's all well and good to compile all the hunting knives and organize them, but they aren't all made equal, even if they're all made by Buck. So I've combed through the selection and picked out what seemed like the actual best buys and done my best to separate them into knives best for using on big game and knives best for using on small game so we can all lead happier lives.

Buck Knives for Hunting Big Game The rule of thumb as I understand it is that a knife should have a fairly thick blade, a good curved belly, and a short tip if it's being used for big game. I'm not here to tell you how to skin a deer, but I need a simple way to organize all these damn knives, so here are all the Buck hunting knives with thicker blades around or over 3 inches. 103 Skinner Overall Length 8.25" Blade Length 4.0" Blade Steel 420HC Style Skinner drop point Grind Hollow Handle Material Phenolic or Cocobolor DymaLux Sheath Leather It's hard to beat Buck's dedicated skinning knife. The 103 Skinner has an extra wide blade with a big curvy belly. This is easily one of the best knives for big game on this list just based on its simple design and tough build. It does have a couple odd issues, though. For example. The handguard seems like a weird feature when they could have had a much larger and more comfortable finger choil without it. And the leather sheath, as nice as it is, can only be a drop carry. That said, if you're intention is dressing deer or boar in the field, you won't regret having the 103. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon 141 PackLite Large Skinner Knife Overall Length 8.0" Blade Length 3.5" Blade Steel 420HC Style Recurve skinner Grind Hollow Handle Material Stainless steel Sheath Nylon Variations Guthook blade The PakLite knives aren't for everyone, but they carry a lot of potential for a very small price. The PakLite Big Game Skinner is skeletonized to reduce weight and features a pretty generous recurve. Buck actually came out with this model because people kept saying they wanted a bigger version of the 140 which will come up later. Common practice is to run paracord through the handle so you have something comfortable to hold onto and have some extra rope on hand in case you really need it. There's also a guthook version if that's your style. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon Omni Hunter 12pt Overall Length 9.

75" Blade Length 4.0" Blade Steel 420HC Style Drop point skinner Grind Hollow Handle Material Rubber Open System Thumbstud Carry System Nylon sheath Lock Type Liner Variations Folder, Omni Hunter 10pt. The Omnihunter 12pt is around the same length range as the Esee 3 and 4. I've listed this over the Omnihunter 10pt for that reason. It makes pretty strong competition in the 4inch blade category. It's comparatively cheap but still manages to provide plenty of durability and comfort. Its handle material comes in a much wider range of patterns if you're into that sort of thing, and Buck makes it as a folder. The materials are arguably a downgrade from Esee stuff, but I haven't heard a lot of hunters complaining about Bucks 420 steel or rubber handles. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon 401 Kalinga Knife Overall Length 10.0" Blade Length 4.75" Blade Steel 420HC Style Upswept skinner Grind Hollow Handle Material DymaLux redwood Carry System Leather Sheath This is a materials update of an older model Buck came out with back in the 60's which unfortunately puts it in collector's territory. It's highpriced compared to a lot of other knife on this list, and most people who buy just like to have it sit around and look pretty. That's a shame because as a biggame skinner and allaround camping task knife, the Kalinga is a great blade. That huge upswept design and high grind make it good for skinning, but it's also viable for carving and chopping thanks to the generous finger choil and the thick spine. Check Price on Amazon 535 Open Season Moose Skinner Overall Length 11.18" Blade Length 8.0" Blade Steel S35VN Style Spear point Grind Hollow Handle Material Micarta Carry System Leather Sheath This is one of the few Open Season knives that only seem to come in the S30V Pro version. I'm not sure what Buck's reasoning is for that. But people who hunt moose have something against 420HC.

Whatever the reason, it's still a great knife designed for carving up exceptionally large game like moose, I guess. The length of the edge provides plenty of room for angling the slice, and the spear point plenty sharp to get the work started, and good strong base for when the work gets heavier. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon Open Season Skinner Overall Length 8.25" Blade Length 4.5" Blade Steel 420HC or S35VN Style Drop point Grind Hollow Handle Material DymaLux, Micarta, or Thermopalstic Open System Thumbhole Carry System Polyester sheath Lock Type Backlock Variations Folding, Pro, Guthook This is the larger version of the Open Season skinners you'll find the smaller version farther down. It also comes in a folding version, which is great if you want a more compact way of carrying this knife. The polyester sheath for the folding Skinner is definitely a lot easier to carry than the dropcarry of the fixed blade. It's great all around once the blade is out, though. It has just enough recurve to make slicing a lot easier, well placed jimping along with a finger choil and a tough handle material that's easy to clean. As one of Buck's latest hunting knife designs, it's evidence of a pretty healthy direction for the company. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon 685 Bucklite Max II Large Knife Overall Length 8.875" Blade Length 4.0" Blade Steel 420HC Style Drop point Grind Hollow Handle Material Rubber Carry System Polyester Variations Guthook First off, easily one of the best features about the BuckLite Max series is the cost. This Large and Small knife are pretty incredible blades for the money. It's a sturdy knife with decent materials in the kind of design that you don't mind getting dirty and is easy to clean up anyway. You can also get the knife with a gut hook on the back of the blade. I have to assume there are people out there who actually use that thing since Buck keeps making knives with it.

Gut hook or not, though, this is a great knife for beginning and experienced hunters. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon Vanguard Knife Overall Length 8.5" Blade Length 4.25" Blade Steel 420HC Style Drop point Grind Hollow Handle Material DymaLuxWalnut Carry System Leather sheath Buck can make all the updates and modern designs it wants to, it's really hard to beat the Vanguard for function and looks. The shape of the blade is versatile enough to use for bother small and large game, and the knife itself is so tough and well balanced it ends up getting used for just about everything when you're in the bush. The handle can get a little slippery, and the sheath isn't exactly optimized for long hikes, but those are pretty monior issues in the face of overall design. The Vanguard is not perfect, but it's the kind of knife that makes you love its flaws. Check Price on Blade HQ Check Price on Amazon Zipper Knife Overall Length Blade Length 4.25" Blade Steel 420HC Style Guthook drop point Grind Hollow Handle Material Rubber or DymaLux Walnut Carry System Leather or Nylon sheath I suspect the Buck Zipper was intended to be the guthooked version of the Vanguard, which I disapprove of on principle. The Vanguard design is still good though, and if gut hooks are what you go in for, the Zipper is definitely worth a look. It has essentially the same handle and blade besides the hook on the back. The hook might make the tip fo the knife a little weaker, but it's still great for skinning, and you really shouldn't be stabbing with this thing too much anyway. Check Price on Amazon Buck Knives for Hunting Small Game Again, I'm not about to tell you how to dress a bird or a rabbit, but the common line separating small game knives from big game knives is a thin blade and a long sharp point. It should also probably be a little smaller so it's easier to maneuver the blade around all the tiny bones and parts that come with smaller game.
